Long ago, during the Stone Age, there lived a boy named Kanu. He lived with his family in a cave near a river. The people of the Stone Age did not have houses, electricity, or machines. They used stones to make tools for hunting and cutting.

Every morning, Kanu went with his father to look for food. They hunted animals and gathered fruits, nuts, and roots from the forest. Kanu's mother cooked food over a fire. Fire helped people stay warm, cook food, and keep wild animals away.

One day, Kanu found a smooth, sharp stone near the river. He showed it to his father. His father used the stone to make a new tool for cutting. Everyone in the family was happy because the tool made their work easier.
